To Whom it May Concern,

Concordia University, St. Paul and The Teaching Channel have partnered to offer graduate courses for teachers for their continuing education needs. Please note that enrollment in these individual graduate level courses does not equate to enrollment in a graduate program at CSP.

The credits earned through The Teaching Channel will be considered graduate level continuing education credits from the CSP School of Education and will be reflected on an official transcript upon successful completion. Students may apply up to 6 credit hours as elective credits into the MAED programs (non-licensure) upon acceptance into the program. Review of transferrable courses will be evaluated by the university upon request once a student is enrolled in a graduate program.

To enroll or learn more about the courses offered through this partnership visit www.TeachingChannel.com. Concordia University's Graduate Academic Catalog is available at <http://catalog.csp.edu/>.

Concordia University is a comprehensive Christian liberal arts university, one of nine affiliated with The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Since our founding in 1893, Concordia University has been preparing students for successful careers and meaningful lives by providing an educational experience that is responsive, relevant and real.

Concordia University, St. Paul, has been accredited by The Higher Learning Commission (HLC) since 1959, with reaffirmation of accreditation in 2018. All education programs are fully approved by the State of Minnesota.

Concordia University, St. Paul is also a member of the National Council for State Authorization Reciprocity Agreements (NC-SARA), allowing Concordia University to offer online courses to residents of other states who are also members of NC-SARA. Further information regarding NC-SARA can be found at <https://www.nc-sara.org/>.

Questions regarding how credits earned may be applied to graduate programs at Concordia University, St. Paul should be directed to the Registrar's Office at registrar@csp.edu or 651-641-8233.

Sincerely,
